Good-Natured Rivalry Spurs on Each Committee.

MEETINGS HELD EVERY NIGHT

Frequent Conferences at the Headquarters—Much Secrecy About Novel Attractions Planned—The Eastern Star's Helping Hand and Business Acumen.

The growing interest in the Masonic Fair is evident in the continued activity among the various committees, many of whom, it is said, are quietly preparing to surprise each other with the magnificence of their plans and the perfection with which all details have been worked out.

Every night some committee holds a meeting at the fair headquarters in the Lenox Building. Last night a most important meeting of the fair committee of the Eastern Chapter Order of the Eastern Star was held. This chapter was the second body to decide to participate in the fair, and to apply for space in Convention Hall.

As the Eastern Star is composed chiefly of the wives, mothers, daughters, and sisters of Master Masons, it was deemed advisable by this chapter to place the active management of its booth in the hands of ladies, and its fair committee has the unique distinction of being the only committee organized exclusively by ladies.

The committee has been at work for some time, and the results accomplished are extremely satisfactory. When the general executive committee decided to invite every Masonic body in the United States to contribute to the temple fund, it became necessary to send out nearly 20,000 letters, each having four enclosures. Had an ordinary clerical force been employed to do this work it would have cost several hundred dollars. Esther's committee, however, offered to undertake the work for a moderate compensation, the money to be paid by the fair. The committee was promptly and intelligently done, and the ladies, in addition to the compensation, received unanimous vote of thanks from the executive committee.

At the meeting last night reports were received from members in charge of special schemes. The ladies are enthusiastic over their prospects and are confident that their booth will be the peer of any at the fair. The committee having charge of the work is composed of the following ladies: Mrs. C. B. Allen, Mrs. J. N. Streater, chairman; Mrs. Minnie Gibson, vice chairman; Mrs. Edith P. Tyler, secretary; Mrs. Sarah M. McQueen, treasurer; Mrs. J. H. Allen, Mrs. Lena G. Cheesman, Ida McKelvin, Charlotte M. Pine, Bertha G. Hudson, Pearl A. Johnson, Pearl B. Parsons, Augusta Reford, Mrs. J. H. Allen, Mrs. Scott, Clara B. Drury, Effie A. Roberts, Florence E. Costinck, Rose M. Riddle, N. W. Jones, Mary B. Hazard, Grace S. Walcott, Frances M. Hays, Mrs. J. H. Allen, Imogen Churchill, and Emily Botsch. Misses Gertrude Stranahan, Belle Whitson, Celia Atchison, H. B. Crump, M. C. Beck, A. L. Braley, and Flora Gibson. Messrs. George Gibson, B. A. Allen, D. G. Cheesman, W. H. McKelvin, Frank P. Hays, J. Ed Swaine, J. W. Lucas, and A. S. Riddle.

The committee on public order and comfort, of which Major Sylvester is chairman, has submitted to the executive committee its report on the recommendations as to rules and regulations that should be enforced on the premises during the great fair.

The plans are most elaborate and contemplate a thorough policing of the halls by members of the special subcommittees to be announced within the next few days, assisted by members of the regular police force. There will also be a regular detail of firemen at the hall at all times to guard against any serious conflagration. It is understood that the report will be adopted in its entirety by the executive committee.

NO POST-MORTEM NEEDED.

Asphalt Worker's Death Due to Kidney Trouble.
Coroner Nevitt this morning issued a certificate of death due to kidney trouble in the case of Peter Johnson, the negro who was taken suddenly ill yesterday afternoon at the asphalt block factory, South Capitol and R Streets southwest, and who died shortly afterward at the Casualty Hospital.

For some little time the surgeons were in doubt as to the cause of the man's death and it was decided to ask the Coroner to make a post-mortem examination of the morning. But later the physicians discovered unmistakable signs of kidney trouble and the post-mortem was deemed unnecessary. The remains of the man will be turned over to the family today, the body now being at the morgue.

Thrown From His Horse.

Thomas Brandt, aged twenty-three years, of 1502 Twentieth Street northwest, was thrown from his horse while riding on Pennsylvania Avenue, near Seventeenth Street, late yesterday afternoon. The rider was not much hurt, but he went to the Emergency Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. Last night he went home.

A RARE COLLECTION OF LITERARY CURIOS

Includes the Autographs of Celebrated Persons.

Illuminated Manuscripts Are Most Interesting—Richness and Beauty of Bindings.

Mr. William Doxey, formerly publisher of "The Lark" of San Francisco, is at the Shoreham in charge of an exhibition of rare books and other literary curios, the property of Dodd, Mead & Co.

The collection includes autographs of celebrated persons from the sixteenth century to the present day, many books in fine and rare bindings, first editions of famous books, and some books and portraits of interest in connection with American history.

Autograph Collection.

To many people the autograph collection will be more interesting than anything else. There are in it signatures and letters of Queen Elizabeth, Lord Chesterfield, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Tennyson, Browning, Emerson, Lincoln, Kipling, Walt Whitman, Washington, Jefferson, and a hundred or more other famous people.

A note from King Edward VII to Mrs. Langtry is to be found in this collection. There are also papers drawn up by Lincoln, during each of his three law partnerships. Another interesting manuscript is the original copy of Keats' "Cap and Bells."

Among the first editions are to be found the works of Tennyson as published for his own private satisfaction. The poet had a fancy for seeing his work in type before it was given to the public, and therefore caused from half a dozen to a dozen copies of each of his works to be printed, that he might see and correct them in that form. "Thomas a Becket" was printed in this way four years before the public saw it. These privately printed copies are necessarily extremely rare, but a complete set has been gotten together by the owners of this collection.

Kipling's "Departmental Ditties." Another interesting first edition is a copy of Kipling's "Departmental Ditties" as it appeared in its original gay jacket. Several changes have been made in the later editions, notably one in the poem entitled "General Summary," where the poet originally rhymed "India with today." There is a presentation copy of "Beak House" with the Cruikshank drawings, and there are some original drawings by Cruikshank, in color, made for the "Comic Almanac."

The collection of illuminated manuscripts is a most interesting one. There are several illuminated Bibles of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, the work of monastic artists, and the curious may note that the gold in these books—and there is a great deal of it—is not put on with a brush, but is a thin sheet of real gold, not gold leaf. The effect of the illuminated capitals is exquisitely rich and quaint. There are also two or three beautiful illuminated copies of the "Book of Hours."

Not Confined to Middle Ages.

The illumination, however, is not all of the Middle Ages. Two or three beautifully executed books of this kind are the work of the nineteenth century, the artist being Mrs. Gotthold, of New York, daughter of Mr. Simon Wolf, of this city. She has illustrated "The Rubaiyat" of Omar Khayyam most charmingly.

The richness and beauty of the bindings of both old and new books are a delight to the eye. One volume has some $100 worth of work on its cover, and it is not a pretentious looking tome, either. Of course, all of this work is done by hand, by thoroughly trained artists. Mr. Doxey speaks appreciatively of the work of the Grolier Club and of the Kelmscott Press in this line.

There is besides a considerable collection of miscellaneous curios in the exhibit, among them old portraits of Tennyson, Lincoln, and Shakespeare, and one of the handbills advertising a reward for the capture of John Wilkes Booth.

MOTOR CAR ON FIRE.

Blaze Quickly Extinguished by the Department.

As the controller of motor car 9, of the Washington, Alexandria and Mount Vernon Railway, was being shifted so as to change the current from the underground to the overhead system, at Maryland Avenue and Fourteenth Streets southwest, last night, there was a sudden flash and fire started beneath the car. As the current was momentarily disconnected, the shock was quite severe and the motorman fell. The train narrowly escaped serious injury. Other persons on the train were startled, but no one was hurt.

The fire, which threatened the destruction of the car, resulted in an alarm being sent in from box 417, and firemen were soon on hand. Little difficulty was experienced in extinguishing the blaze, and the damage was slight. After some delay consequent upon the accident, the train proceeded to Alexandria.

FOOD CURE.

The True Way to Get Well.

The tales told of how food will make people well are nearly always interesting. A young lady in Cleveland, O., says: "I had a nervous prostration and was finally glad to give up and go to bed. Did not know what was the matter with me. My physician told me that I should take a trip, and a favorite aunt, who was at that time a visitor at my home, urged me to return with her. The doctor said I might get out of bed in a few days, and so I did. I was still very weak, I made the journey, which was a short one, to Cleveland."

There I gave out again and had neuralgia and other ailments. While in this condition I was urged to change my food and try Grape-Nuts. I had tried Grape-Nuts at home but did not like them because I did not use them right, having put hot water on them, but under the advice of a friend I started in on Grape-Nuts and cream and in a few days I was able to get up and in a few more days I was able to go to Cleveland.

In addition to strength of body I noticed a remarkable improvement in my mental strength. It was a pleasure to me to read and think and great big worries that would have put me to bed in my former condition slipped off as easily without oppressing me at all. RESIDENTS PROTEST AGAINST WAGON STAND

Object to One on Nineteenth
Between K and L Streets.

Major Sylvester Recommends Its Removal as It Would Prove an Annoyance in Summer.

Residents in the neighborhood of Nineteenth and K Streets northwest are somewhat agitated over the continued presence on Nineteenth Street between K and L Streets of a wagon stand lately moved to that point. The complainants protest against the disagreeable odor from the stand, the noise of the drivers and the stamping of horses, as well as the drawing of the neighborhood of numberless flies in the summer time.

Major Sylvester has instructed the inspector of hacks, Mr. A. R. Lamb, to look around further in the section referred to with a view to finding some place to which the objectionable stand could be removed.

Second Protest Made.

This is the second protest against the alleged nuisance. Mr. Lamb reported a few days ago that he had found two locations to which these wagons might be removed with the least probability of complaint for the reason that adjacent property is not improved. He says that four wagons may be located on Twenty-sixth Street, immediately north of K Street, and four more on E Street east of Nineteenth Street, on the north side of Rawlins Square. He states that the only objection to these locations seems to be the possibility that they will not be as profitable to the owners and drivers of the wagons as the present location on Nineteenth Street.

Mr. Lamb suggests the advisability of leaving one wagon on the east side of Nineteenth Street, immediately south of L Street, and of locating another on the east side of Nineteenth Street, just north of L Street, for the reason that it will be a convenience to the public who have for many years patronized this stand. Lieut. R. B. Boyle, of the Third precinct, has reported that the locations stated are the only available ones in that neighborhood, where there would seem to be no cause for complaint.

Major Sylvester's Recommendations. Major Sylvester has reported to the Commissioners that recently a new apartment house was erected at the northwest corner of Nineteenth and K Streets, and the proximity of the wagon stand during the summer would no doubt prove annoying to the occupants of the same.

Major Sylvester recommends that the stand now maintained be abolished, and a stand for four vehicles be established on E Street, north of M Street, and another stand for four vehicles be established on E Street, north of Nineteenth Street. Major Sylvester was unable to approve the recommendation for the two wagons to stand respectively on Nineteenth Street north and south of L Street, in that it would be a discrimination in favor of the two wagons mentioned. On the other hand, Major Sylvester does not know of any law prohibiting persons from standing a vehicle in front of their own premises. If used in the conduct of their usual business.

NEWS AND GOSSIP FROM GEORGETOWN

The District Government has cut off the water supply of nineteen frame houses at the corner of Thirty-third and P Streets. For eight or ten years, it is said, these houses have received their supply from a private main. The District has either just discovered this or has just seen fit to take cognizance of it.

Some persons state that the supply was cut off by accident while the men from the Water Department were engaged in making certain repairs to a neighboring main. This view of the case is rather borne out by instructions received at first from the water office. When complaint was made there, the reply was made that the pipes evidently needed blowing out and that the District knew nothing of a disconnection or a cutting off of the water from the houses. Later, on a personal visit to the corner, the owners of the property to the District Building, he was informed that a new connection with the front main must be made.

The severe hardship upon the owners, mostly colored people, who have acquired their little holdings through much labor, and who believed in the honesty of the District, was not taken into account. All of the houses were practically severed and watered in conformity with the law. It appears that at the time the connections were made, no official objections to the plan adopted were raised.

Father Edward L. Buckley, assistant pastor of St. Matthew's Church, will preach at Trinity Church tomorrow evening, at the regular Lenten services. Father Buckley, who was ordained about a year ago, celebrated his first mass at Trinity Church.

The services during Holy Week will be held by the priests and chorale of Georgetown University, assisted by a selected and well-trained choir of young men and boys.

Georgetown Tent, No. 6, of the Macabees, will give an entertainment to-night at National Rifles armory. The feature will be a dramatic sketch, "A Fair of Gloom" presented by the Linthicum Dramatic Club.

The report is denied that Messrs. Peyton B. Fletcher and Edward C. Haney, of the Linthicum Dramatic Club, had tendered their resignation which, at a meeting of the club, would be accepted. The statement was made, it is supposed, by some unauthorized person but connected with the club, who was evidently not cognizant of the club's affairs.

Allen Harrison, a twelve-year-old school boy, was taken into custody yesterday morning for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk. He was released after leaving $3 collateral at the station.

Mr. William Bearley is about to begin the construction of three modern brick dwellings on the west side of Twenty-ninth Street above O.

Frank S. Bright has transferred to Christiana Fidelity, for $4,000, part of the "Tudor Place" property on Thirty-first Street, near U.

Mr. James K. Proby, who has been in Florida for several months, is expected home about April 1.

The receipts of the Georgetown custom house for the week ended Saturday, March 15, amounted to $1,538.

PEELED CHEESE AND TINY MICROBES

The Combination Declared
Not Injurious to Health.

A DISCOURSE ON LIMBURGER

Adverse Views of Louisville Health Officer Not Shared by Local Delicatessen Dealers—Interesting History of the Product.

There is considerable uneasiness among proprietors of the fancy groceries and delicatessen stores in this city on account of a rumor that the health authorities are going to prohibit the sale of limburger cheese for the reason alleged of its being full of microbes and therefore dangerous to health. The health officer at Louisville has issued a prescript against the article and stated that he would prosecute anyone offering the product for sale.

An investigation this morning by a reporter for The Times disclosed the fact that large quantities of the cheese are annually sold in this city. There are many people who declare that the luscious limburger is a delicacy and its manufacture in this country should be fostered as an infant industry.

The reporter went into a delicatessen shop on Pennsylvania Avenue and purchased a small quantity of the produce in order to subject it to a microscopic examination, and ascertain whether in fact it did swarm with microbes. It was returned to the delicatessen dealer with the statement that it was unfit to eat.

"What do you want?" he asked, with the accent on the second word. "That is the finest limburger—rich—smell it."

Cheese Pedigrees the Fashion. The reporter had already smelled it, but the delicatessen dealer insisted that its odoriferous qualities were its highest recommendation. "When it is fresh it has to be kept some time in order to become ripe. It improves with age. I have known some limburger to sell for a high sum of money. It is fashionable in some of the high society of the past few years to keep pedigrees of their limburger, just as they do with old wine. If you once taste it you will never forget it. It has a peculiar smell and a taste of its own that is unlike that of any other cheese."

I am afraid that Louisville doctor does not know much about limburger cheese. He does not know the bluish fungus, which will take possession of one when in the act of feasting on limburger cheese sandwiches and lager beer."

Not Dismayed by Microbes. "But he says it is full of microbes," suggested The Times reporter.

"What if it be? Aren't microbes good. If they are healthy and wholesome? Look at the number of people who have eaten limburger cheese all their lives and have gotten fat on it? Nobody ever died from eating limburger cheese. It is better cold apple pie any day in the week and it is cheaper."

The delicatessen dealer became indignant when it was suggested that perhaps limburger cheese did not come from Limburg, but had its origin in Hoboken, N. J.

The History of Limburger. "That shows how little people know about it," said he. "Limburger cheese is not made in Germany at all, but in Belgium, and the French have more reason to like it than the Germans, and do, in fact, eat a great deal of it. It is made in the little town of Herve, near Limburg, in the high fens of Germany between 1829 and 1860, when Dutch Limburg belonged, in a military district, to the German Confederation. The making of this cheese is almost the sole industry of Herve, and its composition is claimed to be a secret. At the same time, there is no concealing the fact that some excellent limburger cheeses are made in this country."

The Century Dictionary says of limburger cheese: "It is eaten in a state of putrefaction." This, however, is not a slur on limburger, for many of the other highly-prized cheeses are only supposed to be at their best when microbes and even other species of life appear."

Views of a Physician. A prominent physician, when asked about the matter, said:

"Microbes are not necessarily fatal. I take them into my stomach. There are microbes in a lot of things we eat. Limburger cheese under the microscope reveals at times the presence of microbes such as you find in dates and other fruit. While it may not improve with age, it is likely to undergo chemical changes."

The pungent smell of limburger cheese comes from the chemical alterations it undergoes. If it were a dead substance it might have no smell."

THIEVES AFTER CASH ONLY.

Several Robberies of Money Reported to the Police.

The list of robberies reported by the police last night shows complaints from many persons. Evidently the thieves were after hard cash, as little else was stolen.

Mr. Fred H. Kramer, the florist, whose establishment is at Anacostia, has missed $150, taken from his residence within the past few days. There is no clue to the thief. Mr. Kramer states that the money was taken from a wallet in his overcoat pocket. Owing to the warm weather of several days past, he did not wear the coat, and therefore failed to immediately discover the robbery.

Mrs. Mary Hepper, 409 Four-and-a-half Street southwest, reports that somebody robbed her of two gold watches, valued together at $50, on Saturday night or Sunday. The thief also took $50 in cash from her residence.

Mr. Angelo Verona, 1409 T Street northwest, wants to find the thief who took $16 from a room of his residence on Saturday night. This money disappeared from a mantelpiece. Detective Weedon is engaged on the case.

POMPEIIAN RESEARCH TOLD BY PROF. KELSEY

He Describes Ten Years Spent
In Making Excavations.

Period of His Work One of the Four Great Epochs of Scientific Achievement There.

Prof. Francis W. Kelsey, of the University of Michigan, entertained the members and friends of the Classical Club of the Columbian University last evening with an illustrated lecture entitled "Ten Years of Excavation at Pompeii, 1892-1901." The lecture was given on the occasion of the second annual celebration of the club at the University Hall, Fifteenth and H Streets northwest. The audience was a large one and taxed the hall to its capacity.

The club was organized two years ago by Prof. Mitchell Carroll, now its president, for the purpose of promoting the study of classical literature and art. Two members regarded themselves fortunate in securing so eminent a Latinist and archeologist as Prof. Kelsey for its lecturer.

He is a well-known editor and translator of Caesar, Xenophon, Lucian and other classical authors, and until recently a director of the American School of Classical Studies at Rome.

Dr. Kelsey by way of introduction recalled briefly the circumstances of the destruction of Pompeii, and traced the history of the excavations, which have been carried on since the end of March, 1748. In the entire period excavations there have been four decades specially noteworthy on account of the number and interest of the discoveries.

These four decades are: 1763-1772, when the group of public buildings on the south side of the city near the Triangular Forum, part of the street of Tombs and the so-called Villa of Diomedes, were brought to light; 1813-1822, when the excavators cleared the Small Baths and several private houses, among which were those of Glaucus and of Pansa, familiar to readers of Bulwer Lytton's novel, and finally the decade just closed, 1892-1901.

A general account was then given of the discoveries of the past ten years, among which were mentioned the uncovered, in 1892-93, of the House of the Silver Wedding, containing the most stately atrium yet found at Pompeii; the discovery of the House of the Vestal, excavated in 1895-96, which has contributed more to our appreciation of Pompeian painting than any other house yet brought to light; the unearthing of the Villa of Boscoreale, about the same time, with its remarkable treasure of silver plate; the finding of the temple of Venus Pompeiana, excavated in 1898-1899, planned as the largest and finest of Pompeian temples, but unfinished at the time of the destruction of the city, and finally, the finding of an in-famous, bronze statue, in November, 1900, just north of the city.

The remaining part of the lecture was mainly devoted to a description of specimens of the ancient silver plate, which was found in a wine cask of the House of reale Villa and presented by Baron Rothschild, of Paris, to the Louvre.

More common than we may think, if we define gluttony as eating beyond the body's need of sustenance, and beyond the stomach's capacity for digestion and assimilation of food, gluttony is a fair definition, and it fastens the name glutton on many a person who would resent the term as an insult. The fact of this gluttony is marked by its consequences. The overloaded stomach becomes distended. The popular term for the condition is "weak" stomach. The "weak" stomach fails in furnishing adequate nutrition for the body, and soon the "weakness" spreads from the stomach to other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food, by which alone the health and strength of the body is maintained.

Your medicine helped me so much that I cannot praise it too highly," writes Mrs. C. L. Brooks, of Poland, Andover Co., Me. "The first dose I took helped me. I cannot tell how I felt when I took it; I was suffering everything with indigestion, at any stomach was so bloated that it seemed as though I must burst. My husband said he was going for a doctor, but I said he would not do me any good. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' I bought at that time. I had been sick for four years, and less than four bottles cured me. Some people that knew me before I began to take 'Golden Medical Discovery' tell me that they never saw such a change in any one, and they also say they don't see how I can do such large washings as I do now, when I had not done a washing for so long."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

QUESTION INVOLVING PROPERTY RIGHTS

Mr. E. A. McIntire Appeals to the Commissioners.

Effort Made to Eject Him From His Two-Story Double House on the * Bladensburg Road.

A question involving property rights has been raised in a letter to the District Commissioners from Mr. E. A. McIntire, of 224 C Street northwest. Mr. McIntire states that in 1892 he built a two-story double house on the Bladensburg Road near Mt. Olivet Cemetery, and that since that time the taxes have been regularly paid. He says further that his deed calls for thirty feet of James L. King's subdivision of the "Long Meadow." He declares that he built the house upon lines furnished by the District Surveyor, April 16, 1893, and signed by William Forsyth.

Served With Paper in Ejectment. Mr. McIntire states that in December, 1901, he was served with a paper in an ejectment case filed by Mr. W. E. Lester, attorney for Mr. Selden M. Ely, and that recently his attention had been called to a survey purporting to be made by the present Surveyor of the District showing his house to be thirty feet over on lot 21 alleged to belong to Mr. Ely.

Mr. McIntire submits that, if the survey is correct, he took every precaution which a prudent man could take when he built his house, and that inasmuch as he built upon lines furnished by the then surveyor that the District should protect him from loss.

To Be Referred to City Solicitor.

Mr. H. B. Looker, the Surveyor of the District, has submitted a report upon the matter in which he says that the difficulty experienced by Mr. McIntire is merely a phase of the question of the location of the Bladensburg Road. He states that a full report upon the question was recently sent in from his office, in which the true location was shown. Mr. Looker says there is no copy in his office of the survey certificate referred to by Mr. McIntire, but that the field notes appear to indicate that Mr. Forsyth then knew of the erroneous location of the Bladensburg Road, and that he had found all lots to be located from such erroneous location of the street. Mr. Looker says that the notes are in pencil and somewhat blurred, but can be made out.

Acting upon the recommendation of Captain H. B. Looker, the Surveyor, to the Engineer, Mr. Looker has then referred the matter to the City Solicitor for his opinion.

Boy's Leg Broken by Wagon Wheel.

Louis Everett, four years old, was run over by a horse and wagon driven by an unknown negro yesterday afternoon. The child's right leg was broken by the wheels. The child was taken to the Casualty Hospital, where the fracture was placed in a plaster cast. The negro has not been arrested, as no one knows his identity.
